John Deere Gold Medal Award

In 1837, John Deere forged a piece of saw blade into a plow, creating the world's first all-steel moldboard. A century later, his descendants established the John Deere Award to recognize "Distinguished Achievement in the Application of Science and Art to the Soil."

The likeness of John Deere appears on one side of the medal. The other side displays a scene symbolic of America's trek westward, its agricultural heritage and burgeoning industry. In the forefront, a homesteader guides a covered wagon carrying his family, their precious plow and other possessions through the wilderness. Behind the wagon, familiar symbols of industrialization are portrayed against the rays of a dawning sun, evoking the image of America's development of the highest standard of living the world had yet known.
